Rexford Industrial LLC appointed industry leader Bruce A. Herbkersman as director of project management to its Southern California industrial real estate firm. Herbkersman will be responsible for project management and construction activities, including execution of tenant improvements and the repositioning and renovation of value-add properties.

Bringing more than 19 years of general contracting and construction management experience to the Rexford team, he was most recently employed with Lowe Enterprises as a senior vice president, expanding his career overseeing prominent industrial projects and heading up the construction management for Southern California.

"Bruce has hit the ground running and I am very pleased to have the opportunity to work with someone of Bruce's caliber, with the demonstrated capacity to enhance our ability to create value," said Senior Managing Partner Howard Schwimmer.

He holds a bachelor's degree in construction management from Cal Poly University in San Luis Obispo, CA.
